

Memo

To: Com 221 Students

From: Lynn Koller

Date: January 10, 2012

Re: Module 14 - Blog

Check out your own online identity. Enter your name in Spokeo.com, ZoomInfo.com, PiPl.com, and Radaris.com to see what comes up. Check out the public records databases in your hometown and/or current residence (Volusia County's is here.) Pull up your traffic tickets, property records, civil and criminal records, and whatever else you can find. With GoogleEarth, anyone can access a photo of your house, and add to that photos from Flickr and Facebook, as well as videos from YouTube. Check your name and also usernames associated with your name.

Write a post about what you found, and include any interesting search links. You DO NOT have to provide any identifying information in your post about yourself (except your name!) unless you want to. Write about the kind of information you were able to find, and what you might do (if anything) in order to manage your online identity in the future. If you have no plans to change anything, write about how you currently use social media sites and how you think that may change as you enter the workplace.